Oh my, not only the economy, but our servers too?! It seems that we've experienced quite a bit of downtime last week. The hosting company assured us that the downtime was due to some major hardware upgrade all in the favor of providing a better experience for you and me, but... OK, whatever 😊 So let's hope now, that no more 403 errors will damp your day and all will get their daily dose of 2adventures. com. However, we will be fiddling with the site throughout the next few days which shouldn't cause problems, but it just might... Thanks for sticking with us!

Boy, has it been busy here at 2adventures' headquarters! We – along with you – are having an excellent summer with too much to do. It's not only the summer's organising that's keeping us up late at night, but also the coming winter. Get ready for Galapagos and a lot of South America starting November. But until then, enjoy the northern hemisphere's summer! 😊

Kilimanjaro: Umbwe via Arrow Glacier

Getting the best of Southern India

0 Comments

The Umbwe route is one of the shortest routes to the Southern Glaciers and the Western Breach. It is probably the most scenic, non-technical route on Kilimanjaro. It is quite taxing, primarily due to the relatively fast ascent to higher altitude, but the rewards are plentiful. Fewer people, pristine forest and shorter walking distances make [...]
